Details: With Zen like focus he walked onto stage a few years ago, an untried songwriter and performer. Armed only with his acoustic guitar and the songs he had been perfecting for the last year in his grandmothers attic. The first thing people noticed were his hands... frantic yet disciplined, the percussive right hand attacking the strings as the left glided effortlessly across the fretboard, creating that driving hypnotic groove. Next they heard his voice... a soulful combination of humility and joy delivering every sage lyric and stunning melody with heartfelt honesty. Baffled looks crossed the faces of the music industry professionals assembled. Each asking the same question, who is this guy? Mark Croft is a Madison, WI based singer/songwriter, whose talents as a writer, performer, and acoustic guitarist have garnered him critical praise and public attention quickly gaining him recognition as one of the rising stars of the Midwest music scene. Known for his unforgettable melodies and infectious grooves, Croft breaks the genre barriers to create a mainstream sound from the heart of a folk musician. While he may have strode onstage only recently Croft began his study of music at the tender age of six, plunking out tunes on his familys old player piano. His first piano teacher quickly recognized Marks talents and dropped the rest of his students to focus efforts on developing Crofts burgeoning abilities. Mark began experimenting with writing by composing some of his first works on the piano. But it wasnt until he joined his friends in a garage band in high school that he picked up a guitar and realized he possessed a talent and love for the six-string as well. After taking a songwriting class in 2003 Crofts talents as a songwriter and performer became obvious. Croft's third release, "The Possibility

Of Disaster" exemplifies how the artist has grown as a songwriter and lyricist, containing some of Croft's best songwriting to date. With upbeat rhythms and dark overtones, Croft weaves tales of revenge and mayhem while leaving some light at the end of the tunnel.
