Fantastic!! Well done! Nearly all of it resonates - partly because it so varied. After several years of hearing collections of Tim Bragg's songs, this instrumental set comes as a very pleasant surprise. One would most likely never have expected a collection of instrumental pieces, but there is also the added surprise of just how varied, inspired, consistent and entertaining this very accomplished one man multi-instrumental set is to listen to. Here is a rough guide to the tracks. 1 - Frantic and with an ambient backdrop, reminiscent of the improvisations of King Crimson circa 1981-1984. 2 - In contrast to the opening track, and with an acoustic guitar figure all the way through, this wouldn't sound out of place on the playlist of helpmechill 3 - Combines acoustic drums which are both crisp and clear and inspired and inventive, with electronica. 4 - Laid back with electric guitar played over both electronic sounds and the sounds of nature. 5 - A light reggae feel, and more lead guitar. Compositionally, least impressive of the set so far, but short enough to be an interlude. 6 - Some nice sounding rhythms. 7 - Just like its title 8 - Acoustic guitar and flute - as track 2 but with drums! 9 - A spoken lyric, over swinging and delightfully hyper active drums, with sparse piano. Both the subject and delivery of the words give this track a remarkably powerful emotional punch. 10 - Upbeat and busy 11 - Laid back, and reminiscent of Traffic with its flute and percussion and piano figure. The sleeve notes refer to a theme of loss as a source of both inspiration and motivation behind writing these pieces of music. The result is an uplifting collection whose variety of themes alone bring about a feeling of great abundance. This is a fantastic one man accomplishment!! - GS
