Driving worldly psychedelic modernism from Finland. 12 MP3 Songs ROCK: Psychedelic, ROCK: 60's

Rock Details: The Electric Crayon Set is a psychedelic brainchild of the finnish musicmaker, guitarist and singer, Timo Paakko. The band first got together as "Jennie Tropik Dream" and recorded only a demo of two songs at the start of 1999. The next incarnation, which is also the current line-up recorded the bands debut 45: "The Hardest Thing/Demons In Disguise". Originally intended as a demo only, the songs caught the ear of the directors at the megatrendy mod label, Detour Records, and in April 2000 it got released as a limited edition of 300 copies (DINT004). The single was well-received all around the globe and was quickly sold out. The band started working on the forthcoming "One Mans Trash..." album in January 2000, the recordings spanning the whole year 2000. It is a concept album, all songs loosely fit on a storyline and the actual tracks tied with sound-effects. No music style is unfamiliar to this bunch: you will find fine examples of Soul, R&B, Acid-Folk and Paisley-Pop among others on this fan-tas-tic record! Power Guitar chords in the vein of the Creation and the Who, layered with Hammond B-3 and gorgeous melodies, not forgetting one of the tightest rhythm units in todays music. The record itself actually is a finnishamerican collaboration. Kim Hitchcock from Austin, Texas is responsible of many of the lyrics on the album, including the superb title track, and the beautiful cover painting is a lovejob of Mad John Nemec from New York City. The initial pressing will be 500 copies, CD only. It will also be the inauguration of a new label, SoundHawk.
