As much as we try to force time to bend in submission to our will, it seems like we are always waiting for SOMETHING. Early on we learn that 'patience is a virtue', yet we zap our dinners in the microwave and shop for everything from music to soul mates using the fastest internet connections we can find, and without ever stepping foot outside or having any contact with a single human being...I mean, who has the TIME anymore?...After all, 'time IS money', right?...ESPECIALLY in the music industry...In our efforts to become 'fast and efficient', we are replacing people with processors, raw talent with the 'smoke and mirrors' of marketing, and creativity with financially driven formulas...it's almost down to a science these days...just plug some numbers into a spreadsheet, place an artist into the machine and BAM, you've got a complete package to sell to the masses for millions of dollars...and we buy it because after all, what else IS there?... Think back to the last song u heard on the radio that made u FEEL something...other than the need to get on the floor and 'shake something'?...no doubt, the radio can have us dancing with the best of them...but what happened to music that evokes some kind of emotion...music that u can relate to on a personal level...what about FEELING a real connection to the song and the artist???...I am not saying that it never happens on mainstream radio anymore...it's just rare. Well, if that is something that you miss as much as we do, here is something for you to listen to While U Wait... So, While U Wait...for the bus, the train, or ur ride...While U Wait...for ur promotion or ur

BIG BREAK...While U Wait for there to be something on the radio that moves you...listen to this...While U Wait...
