Details: Hey everyone, Im Nate S and Im a musician/producer from the San Francisco Bay Area. As far back as I can remember, Ive always seemed to gravitate toward music, yet I never would have imagined that I could actually make a living off of it. For the past several years, Ive been teaching piano during the day and working as a studio musician at night. In 2002, I grew an interest in making electronic music and have continued to make it ever since. I used to only make trance and house, but as the years went by, I have gradually transitioned to drum and bass. Drum Bass Intelligence is the first CD Ive released which is composed entirely of drum and bass music. I decided to give the album its name because Ive come to realize that intelligent drum and bass is the style that I currently produce. Ive been meaning to release this CD for quite some time now, and Im very glad that Im finally putting it out there. At this point in time, Im currently working on new tracks to release, for one of my many goals is to have the Nate S name become synonymous with good drum and bass music. Although I will always love intelligent drum and bass, I have been experimenting with other styles as well, so I really dont know what Im going to do next. However, since Im always trying to improve on my previous work, theres still an excellent chance that I will continue to release more songs in the future. In order to help reach my goals, Ive been attending courses at the Berklee College of Music, where in addition to learning how to create more professional-sounding music, Im also working towards earning a Specialist Degree in Home Audio Recording. Regardless of however much success I achieve as an artist, I will never stop working on my craft - Im just too passionate!
