Rock pop baseball anthem for Chicago Cubs Fans, helping us all believe the magic. 1 MP3 Songs in this album (3:50) ! Related styles: POP: Party Pop, ROCK: Arena Rock Details: "Hey Hey Holy Cow!" is a labor of love born from the joy, misery and shared enthusiasm of being a lifelong Cubs fan. The song captures the excitement and magic of the 2008 Cubs team and the glorious fans across the country, and can be played for years to come, despite or because of anything that occurs this postseason. The spirit of Jack Brickhouse and Harry Caray dance throughout the song, which is sung masterfully by jazz singer Mark Miller. Coco the dog can be heard barking at the cat and the goat, with comical ferocity. The music itself plays with a Van Halenesque/anthem style R&B sound. This song is meant to be played loud in private homes, intimate bedrooms, in bars, at parties, schoolyards, traffic intersections, and across stadium loudspeakers. "Great lyrics!" --Wm Shaykespeare "Ooh boy!" --J Brickhouse "Who'd a thunk it!" H Caray
