A truly eclectic blend of musical styles is what will always define the basic structure of GSP no matter how the project changes in terms of size persnl. If you are 35+ you are likely listng to albums from your earlier years because radio is often a swamp of noise that you have to pick through. This is due to record companies having pretty much given us all up for dead; bad record companies! GSP is not music for those waiting for their allowance or first sexual exprnc..., unless they'd like to share either of those w/ us. This is new music wrtt'n/perfm'd by people who have lived, learned, travl'd and expernc'd life. We are you (but cuter). We live and learn at the relative pace of those w/ a few yrs under their belts and many more to go. The future of your music is a click away. Our next album, chock full of righteous tunage is due out this winter. Going Some Place is part of the ContraCosta Songwriter's Group ccsongs What others have said; "If you like good songs with vocal harmonies, fluid guitar work, unassuming keyboard work and bass playing that work perfectly in the context of a light jazzy touch with a little Latino feel here and there then Offering is for you. I liked the way the songs were punctuated by three instrumentals and particularly appreciated the classical touch on Dance of the Shadows. As Ian Dury used to say this is very good indeed! " Reviewed by Phil Jackson of ParadoxOne // " last week I received a sampler copy of the album Offering. This a very subtle and smart album of modern pop music but with strong echoes of the golden sound of the West Coast of the seventies; the songs are very catchy and the vocals sweet and soft, it sometimes reminds me Art Garfunkel indeed. But what I enjoy more is the guitar work, those long and brilliant solos with a timbre that is like a cross between Jerry Garcia and Pat Metheny. " Massimo Ferro Radio Voce Spazio (Italy)// Going Some Place's CD "Offering" is a stellar release with great guitar blending rock, jazz and soul. Beautiful melodies and standout vocals. The CD is a staple of our radio show.
