The band played for several years in the San Francisco bay area. Both his sons, JR and Jim as well as John DiGiorgio were teenage members. John has since recorded several of Franks songs and attributes some of his success to those years with Frank. Frank considers himself a singer songwriter and has hopes that one of his songs will be captured by one of todays recording artists. Frank always sang and wanted to be a singer like the ballad singers of times gone by. When he first heard Eddie Fisher in the early 50s he knew he wanted to sing. In the 60s rock took over and Frank also fell in love with the music of the day. His music runs through many genres that hes been influenced by and it shows in his writing. His song LA Town is a classic rocker while Sweet Honey Pie (Nashville) is bluegrass. Your senses will be soothed as well as stimulated by a number of mellow love songs. He has always placed the lyrics and storytelling above anything else and states the lyrics come first and the music is there to support the story. When you listen you might be taken back into a past musical period although Frank firmly believes his music is as real today as any other period of time. If youre a blues fan Frank is sorry to disappoint you. He says, To write the blues you need to live the blues. Fortunately he has been blessed with a blues free life. His marriage of 49 years to the same women with sons, grandkids and great grandkids hes proud of, writing the blues would come hard. But if youre a sucker for a love song youve come to the right place. Frank has been influenced by Eddie Fisher, James Taylor, Neil Young, Peter Frampton, John Mayer, Keith Richards, Dave Mason, Marty Stuart, and Brad Paisley to name only a few. Some have remarked that Frank reminds them of Jim Morrison. We hope you enjoy these songs as much as Frank did when he wrote and recorded them.
