The name Lethal is not a generic over-statement; it is the truth, used to describe one of hip-hop's deadliest M.C.'s. Born Magan Giavonni Sullivan, Lethal began rapping at the age of six mimicking such hip-hop greats as MC Lyte, Queen Latifah, Salt-N-Pepa and Doug E. Fresh. As time passed, she discovered that she had a genuine talent and wanted to use it to voice her opinions to the world. Lethal is known for her course lyrics and electrifying flow. Her stage performances are long remembered. She doesn't just rap to her audience, she speaks to her audience. Everyone in the crowd walks away feeling she showed up just for them. Lethal is not only a rapper, but a producer, composer and poet. She is serious about the music she creates because it represents her. Her raw, aggressive style and innocent beauty, has been sought after by several record labels and producers. Lethal has worked with producers from Pennsylvania to Florida, been featured on mix tapes and has made guest appearances with various artists. Lethal is not your run of the mill rapper, she experiments with rock, country and classical music, in addition to R&B and traditional hip-hop beats. Is the world ready for Lethal, probably not, but she is coming.
