Details: This is Durrants first classical album for seven years, and a response to numerous requests from fans at concerts. Its released on the musicians own LongMan Records a thriving indie, acoustic label that can be read as a musical map of Durrants adventures over the past 15 years including albums by diverse acts such as the Ukulele Orchestra of Great Britain, King of the Buskers Don Partridge and a collection of talented singer songwriters. Now its time for Durrant himself to take centre stage and not before time according to many. The content of the album is drawn from the most popular classical guitar pieces Durrant has played over the last few years. This includes the iconic works Asturias (Albeniz), Recuerdos de la Alhambra Capricho Arabe (Tarrega) and Stanley Myers Cavatina. Theyve all been recorded before many times, but not on such an instrument and not in surround sound. The recording is produced by the guitarist and legendary teacher Charles Ramirez (Durrants mentor from his days at the Royal College of Music). Durrant is in his forties now and his playing has just returned to its classical roots. He is also playing more solo concerts than at any other time in his life. He says: I feel a renewed hunger to dig as much beauty and expression from this wooden box as I possibly can and to let my audiences glimpse the passion in the music Ive chosen for this recording.
