Honest, edgy folk-pop carried by elegant jazz vocals. 6 MP3 Songs FOLK: Folk Pop, FOLK: like Joni
Details: "On "The Early Hours," New York-native Rebecca Pronsky offers six perfect songs that sound as natural and unforced as a spring breeze in late April... Rebecca's voice is both dark and hopeful, and she has surrounded herself with a first-rate band to help drive them home... There isn't a complicated thing on this entire record, and that is testament to how well the songs are written." Portsmouth Herald (03/09/05)
"... smooth, sultry, rich, deep and poetic folk-pop texture." New Haven Advocate (03/10/2005) "Pronsky exhibits her vocal talent, playing with words and time, stretching syllables and tone..." NY Rock (01/02/05) "Pronsky's straightforward folk-pop songwriting is lent authority by her big jazz trained voice." Village Voice (06/14/2003) Rebecca's sweet blend of styles is something new and yet something familiar. Rebecca writes charming acoustic-pop tunes and performs them with both elegance and honesty. Her dark and clever lyrics are carried by her jazz-trained voice over the deep grooves produced by her extraordinarily talented band. She boldly blurs genre lines while staying true to a solid and accessible songwriting style all her own. She is proud to announce the release of her second record "The Early Hours." This new EP showcases Rebecca's best new tunes with the full band behind her. The Early Hours is receiving airplay on local and college radio.
