No one will be able remain in couch potato position with rockin' songs like "Jump into the Middle," "Partner Dance" and "Towel Tango." Grownups will re-discover their messy inner children with the song, "We Need Mud." All together, these songs are a moving, soulful celebration of life...family style. Charity and the JAMband is a tribe of musicians, performers, and parents from San Francisco creating an original, rockin', and soulful music and dance experience for families. Due to the huge and positive response from families craving live and recorded music experiences all ages can enjoy together, the JAMband is on its third cd and gigs regularly around the Bay Area. For parents and kids who want to move beyond nursery songs or banal, mindless mainstream kids music, these tunes blur the line between children's music and music that is, simply put, good. "Our music celebrates the joy of childhood and family life," explains Charity Kahn, band leader, songwriter, lead vocalist and keyboard player with the JAMband. Kahn, a mathematician, musician and mother of two young children, has published a book on the connections between math and music. Her music-activity JAM classes in San Francisco are popular with parents, caregivers and kids. Kahn strives to spread joy, connection and family fun through song, dance and silliness. She's been rocking the kids ever since she became a mom. Check out Charity and the JAMband's other releases, also available here on CD Baby: Peanut Butter and JAM, and Music for Movement with Children.
