Alternative Rock 10 MP3 Songs ROCK: Modern Rock, POP: Power Pop Details: Band Profile Born in Taipei, Taiwan, Johnny Hi-Fi moved to America while still in his teens. He and his brother, Asian pop star Kevin Hsu (Golden Point/BMG, Taiwan), started out in Houston, Texas but Johnny Hi-Fi eventually relocated to Austin, where he developed as both a songwriter and performer in the "Live Music Capital of the World." It was there that the Austin Music Network dubbed him an "impeccably dressed walking fashion statement." 7 years and more than 200 regional shows later he left Texas in 1999 for New York City, a location better suited for his unique blend of "Asian Brit-Pop" that has been compared to Coldplay, Radiohead, Jeff Buckley and Weezer. Upon his arrival in New York, "Passive Killer" was licensed by Rock Music Group (Taiwan) and recorded by Chinese pop star Richie Jen (Rock Music Group, Taiwan). This recording representing Johnny Hi-Fi's first musical exposure in his home country. Over 300 performances from New York City to Los Angeles, appearing on PBS' Texas Music Caf television program, and earning multiple "Track of the Day" awards on GarageBand.com, Johnny Hi-Fi is now an acclaimed writer, producer and performer; his solo exploits receiving the long-awaited attention they deserve.
