Written, produced, and arranged by Detroit-based producer extraordinaire afra behn, The Vibemachine is based on the concept of a raggedy, old-school Cadillac, which has the magical power of flight. Not only does this magical Vibemachine have the power of flight, but it has the power to transport willing subjects to a higher state of enlightenment and self-expression. The creation of The Vibemachine began in 2003. The initial recordings were a collection of amazing compositions with the supremely, talented vocalist and afra behns partner-in-crime Tara Nova. These works would become World of Paper/City of Boom EP and the foundation of the subsequent full-length album The Vibemachine. Eventually, afra behn would record even more innovatively, wonderful songs with a talented group of artists and musicians. Pfires powerful vocals provide the soulful backdrop on TIME and Skate Date. Monk demonstrates a dope, old-school rhyme scheme to set the mood of the hip-hop laden, skate party jam Skate Date. Bliss displays the combination of lyrical precision and sexy swagger on The Reason. Walts baritone voice provides the soulful narration of the pressures of the streets on Cop and Blow. afra behns masterful, soul-laced, multi-genre bending production creates the musical landscape of the album, which is further enhanced by the skillful contributions of guitarist, Mike Fowler and trombonist, Felix Chen. The subject matter of the compositions are a colorful palette of afra behns life experiences. The lyrical content encompasses a snap shot of black life in urban America.

There are songs of pride, hope, and pain as well as those that reveal the gain and loss of love. The Vibemachine is a very creative and conceptual album, which attempts to inspire and enlighten. More importantly, the album serves as a full-length introduction to a new movement of high quality, innovative music from afra behn. Enjoy.
