The Cd contains some of the best loved songs from the bands first album, "The Forgotten Fields of America". The song "When I held you", put the band on the map by getting played on many Country-Western stations in California. The DJ's liked the sound because it was Old-School Country and had a very romantic twist in the words. The title song, Sonora Farewell, was an original by band member Patrick Michael Karnahan. The song was based on a miner from Sonora Mexico who had to leave his new found home of Sonora California during the Gold Rush. Patrick and Rick are both featured on background Trumpets while their friend Noe Montoya gives the romantic ballad a Spanish feel. The rich voice of long time band member Steve McArthur gives the Old English Love Ballad, "Georgie", a very haunting feel. This is the oldest traditional song the Black Irish have done. (1600s). The Cd offers the listener a chance to explore the history of the band through some of their most creative work. The whole concept of love loss flows together in forming a single thought.
