Details: New York-based singer-songwriter Paul Loren makes no apologies for his unique brand of soulful piano-based music and lyrics being labelled as Pop. I think pop music, by its very nature, is a hybrid--is a mutt, says Paul. Its a distilled representation of many peoples and their music. Thats what I choose to write and perform: a conglomerate of my own musical tastes, travels, experiences. With IM READY, the debut album available now, Paul paints a broad musical palette with nods to Afro-Brazilian and Caribbean, Gospel, Funk, Jazz, Tin Pan Alley and Psychedelic influences. What has always intrigued me about music is the blending of diverse sounds and textures--how just one phrase can perk up your ears as well as spark your imagination. The ten original tracks are a jubilant ode to lost love and gained perspective--poignant, yet celebratory. What one notices almost instantly, is the apparent absence of electronic, synthetic or digital instrumentation, creating a natural, visceral and classic sonic foundation. The album, produced by veteran Philip A. Jimenez, has roots in the timeless pop music of the 1960s and 70s. Says Paul: We chose to sidestep the current industry standards in how and what we recorded--the honesty of avoiding all the traps of digital cover-ups is really appealing to me. From the onset, we wanted to return to the values of timeless pop music, both in songwriting and production. IM READY is available now for download via CDBaby.com, and for purchase through the artists website, PaulLoren.com. "...Heartbreak has never before sounded so fun, nor has introspection ever seemed so instantaneous." -Nigel St. John Tags: pop
