She grew up on dairy and beef farms, and was driving tractors at a young age. She started playing guitar and writing songs as soon as she could hold a guitar, but her first love has always been singing. She has had various types of jobs, but has always written poetry and done artwork-painting, sculpture, building things. The first time Alivia Biko heard her music played on the radio she went weak in the knees and did the blank stare into space. That wasn't so bad, except she was driving a friend's brand new car. Biko has traveled all over the U.S. singing and bringing music, art, and ministry to various groups. Her first CD was released Easter of 2001 (Art of Life), produced by Kevin Behr. The back CD was released in 2004 (Softly Tenderly), which is her first attempt at self-production. She is currently in the studio working on the next 3 CD's. One is a collection of children's songs, two, peace songs and three a collection of brand new originals. Biko is co-founder and clerk of Freedom Friends Church (Quaker)(freedomfriends.org/), and is also building an art music studio.
