After several years she began learning the violin and eventually the harp. Before she was able to learn the harp she had to acquire one, she didn't have the money to purchase one so she did a study on harp building. Her Dad, Neil, built a sawmill to saw up a tree in the back yard so she could have the wood. In 1998 her first harp was built and since then has been building, renting and selling her lever harps. Nina also performs professionally on her harp. She has done countless weddings, dinners, and a few funerals. She even does skits for schools and libraries with her harps! Nina maintains a large private studio ranging from 25-30 students. She has yearly recitals and ensemble groups for her students. She has been arranging music for years and her arrangements were a hit with other musicians so she decided to publish them and offer them to the public.
