Attaining local success in that scene he worked and shared the stage with such folk music greats as Harry and Tom Chapin and Christine Lavin. Joseph's love for acoustic music took him to Nashville in the 80's where he wrote, recorded and produced with some of Nashville's top musicians. In 1992 he joined forces with his twin brother and long time collaborator John along with life long friend and actor Chris Burke, the star of ABC's hit TV show "Life Goes On". The trio formed a childrens music group and signed a record deal with BMG/Kidz.
