...His voice is so different and interesting that listeners will be compelled to sing along..." Dianne Bennett, the music columnist for the Hollywood Reporter Zinovy was inspired to write this beautiful Christmas song because as a newly arrived Russian immigrant he discovered Christmas, which is not celebrated in his native country. With the Yuletide spirit burning brightly in him he penned this song as a loving tribute to the season his newly adopted land. An internationally celebrated musician, artist, composer and poet, Zinovy Shersher was born in the former Soviet Union. Working under the Communist regime, Shersher was known as Zinovy Tumanov, unable to use his true Jewish name by law of the Soviet authorities. This control of his identity underscored his perpetual struggle for artistic freedom in the U.S.S.R. Shersher immigrated to the United States in 1980. Though he was not allowed to bring any of his work with him, he was able to reclaim his name and make a new start on his career. Finally free to express his artistic vision fully, Shersher flourished with songs and paintings of newfound brilliance. His success has continued throughout his two decades in America, featuring international tours and art shows, and worldwide acclaim. Shersher's musical and artistic talents are harmonized in his paintings, which merge the emotional and intellectual into passionate melodic images. A strong feeling for movement, expressed with curvilinear lines and cubist sensibilities, forms a counterpoint to his tranquil themes. "I want people to hear the music in my paintings," says Zinovy Shersher.
