A Breath of October sounds like smoke drifting from a neighbor's fireplace on a cold, wet fall evening: dark, lonely, mellow, psychedelic sounds with a gothic, jazzy flair and strange progressive rock passages. 8 MP3 Songs ROCK: Psychedelic, ROCK: Progressive Rock Details: With a dark, intense, (and sometimes jazzy) psychedelic rock / gothic sound, Cobweb Strange has been compared to a bizarrely wide range of artists from classic rock groups like the Doors, Pink Floyd and King Crimson to 80s alternative groups such as The Police, U2, Echo The Bunnymen and R.E.M. to New Age artists like Nightnoise Andreas Vollenweider to modern bands like Porcupine Tree, A Perfect Circle and Tool - all without actually sounding like any of these bands. "A Breath of October," the band's third album, offers a new landscape of tones to explore. The Music Street Journal wrote: "...With A Breath of October (Cobweb Strange) have given us a disc that shows a band finding their own way in the musical landscape and bringing a new maturity to their sound. It is really an unusual sound, rather dark and a bit strange, but I can't help but like it. I look forward to seeing where these guys find themselves next, as they continue to show more and more promise...." (musicstreetjournal.com)
