A few years later his parents decided that moving to Maine would be a better place to raise a couple kids. As Malaki got older the boring life in maine led him to trying drugs first pot then pills n then coke mushrooms n xtc, until eventually there was more tension and stress in the house. A year later his parents split up, forcing Malaki to drop out of school and work full-time to help his Father pay the bills. With all the chaos going on, Malaki soon developed alot of anger and inner demons which lead to even more alcohol and drug addiction. During his battle with inner demons he started to take his rage and frustrations out on paper, making music about his life experiences wether they be doing drugs, dealing with his inner angers to his uncontrolled fascination with murder and suicide. Malaki began making more music and soon learned how to produce his own tracks. With so many people that were taking a liking to his music Malaki has decided to build his life up by doing what he loves destroying the ears of listeners with his form of music that he calls Industrial Rap .
