Spoken word, poetry, hip-hop, soul, and r&b combined into one of the best Spoken Words cds of 2006. Uplift and educate your spirit with her words. 16 MP3 Songs SPOKEN WORD: Poetry, HIP HOP/RAP: Hip Hop Details: Many in her community herald her as their local mother of spoken word. But, this Jacksonville native is far more than just a poet. While Malikah Hameen has been writing and performing for over 15 years, it is important to understand that her words are fueled by greater forces. Fusing spirit, culture, revolutionary action, and words she has created a vital tool for social change. Malikah Hameen has performed and done workshops in many of Jacksonville and Atlantas urban schools and featured at such venues as The Ritz Theater, Soul Release, Ninas Jazz Lounge, Project Row Houses, and Black on Black Rhyme just to name a few. She has been published as a freelance writer with The Florida Times Union, FemmeHorizon, Blacksonville, and various other publications. As the founder and artistic director of BlackFace Poetry Troupe she along with Dawn Koffee Dillard and Lizz Straight used music and poetry as a propaganda tool for social issues and could be found changing the vibration at many of the nations premier venues. As a child of spirit and a student of both Iyanifa Faadisi Olaolu Olabisi (Queen Malika Sabah) and Babalawo Ifa Kayode Ogunsini (Dr. Ndugu Khan) she allows herself to be used as a conduit for the voices of our Ancestors. A strong advocate for the healing of African women and children she founded My Sisters House healing womens circle to address the unique spiritual, emotional, and physical needs of the women and children in our community. Currently the FTP Movement Coordinator for the state of Florida and hostess of Jacksonvilles premier monthly culture night Open Cipher, you can find Malikah somewhere between a political education class, a sisters healing circle, and an open mic. In her own words she is A change in your thought process! So, let the change begin. All tracks produced by ZIN
