Beginning with his compositions for William Forsythe in the 1980s and continuing with works created for the choreography of Jiri Kylian, David Parsons, and Alonzo King, Leslie Stuck has created a music of interplay--the collaboration between composer and choreographer, the interrelationships of events in timed sequence, and sound in the service of the stages on which the aural, physical, and visual meet. His works have been performed by such diverse dance companies as the New York City Ballet, the Paris Opera Ballet, Pappa Tarahumara, and the Tokyo Ballet.
