To The Bone Interactive, December 7th, 1999 Jerome Bolden has succeeded in creating a sensuous collection of songs that evoke the mystery of the big city in the small hours of the night and of the souls that inhabit it. This music could have never come from the heartland but only from the inner city where there still lurks in the dark corners, uncertainty and despair coupled with occasional flashes of brilliant hope. He has looked into the darkness and recorded his prescient observations for you to hear. From the Artist This is an album that really explores a wide range of emotions and musical influences. I strongly believe in conveying passion and hope in my songs. Where the music should set the mood and the lyrics follow suit for passionate storytelling. Album Description The Concrete Forest is a vivid collection of songs that display the hope, despair, and triumph of life in the inner city Los Angeles. This Ep glides from smooth R&B in "For Those Who Love" to rock/pop in "Who's Gonna Change The World". A little bit of something for everyone.
