If youve got CDs, youve got money. Keep hustling and grinding, and somebody is gonna want it. For the most part of eight years, underground and do-it-yourself distribution has been the principal way of getting local hip-hop and rap music on the streets. Commercial hip-hop outlets in Knoxville Tn did not exist until late 2002. Fast forward to 2006.. Where You From topped Knoxville Tns HOT 104.5 FM rotation for five weeks in June July 2006. Two months later the remix featuring Yo Gotti, AllStar, and D-Cooley also reached top levels of rotation. During the BOOM in Knoxville, stations in Chattanooga and Johnson City also began to chant 865. Getting local and regional recognition in a market that did not embrace his style was a David vs. Goliath kind of street fight. David (aka Mr. Mack) won, and attracted attention from Atlantic, Epic, and universal Republic records. But the localized theme of the hook got in the way of a national record deal. All companies asked if the 865 could be changed to become more international. Rather than destroy East Tennessees new local anthem, he chose to stay true to his roots, hit the studio, and develop something new. Something to show the White Collars in NYC what country slang is all about. Enter stage left.. So Fly. With its twangy bass guitar lick, nostalgic throwback vibe, and a couple of high pitched kids chanting the hook, Universal Republic decided they didnt want to miss this lick. In September 2007 Mr. Mack signed his first single So Fly with Universal. This does not and will not end the days of Street Hustling your product Now, more than ever, Mr. Mack has been forming alliances in different parts of the country. While most have been profitable and beneficial, Mr. Mack knows when he has a hit or a miss. My Thang feat. Sam was a direct hit before it hit Tennessee airwaves. says Mack. He immediately took the finished product to the Knoxville radio station, and it hasn't stopped spinning yet!

With a label like Universal and partners like Sam, the saga of a man who started his career in the trunk of his car will continue. AND he will always have CDs in the trunk of his car!!
