Tired of buying CDs that have only one or two great songs? BUY THIS ONE!!!! Ten dollars for 12 awesome, original songs!!  Texas singer/songwriter Tricia Mitchell's first solo album is called "Purple Room," and it was produced and engineered by Dallas-based singer/songwriter Colin Boyd. The project began with some recording equipment in the extra bedroom in Mitchell's Houston house, which was painted purple. Mitchell's music is a fusion of pop, folk, and country. Naming influences such as Elvis Costello, Ron Sexsmith, Bruce Springsteen, and Lucinda Williams, she describes her songs, "I strive for catchy melodies, and lyrics that depict the strength in being and remaining emotionally vulnerable. I enjoy writing very simply-structured songs that draw an audience into a complex moment."
