BLUES: Rockin' Blues,

BLUES: Texas Style Details: A simple newspaper ad led blues vocalist and harp player Wavery Milor to the Virginia basement where he met guitarist Steve Remy and drummer Chris Ruckman. Three years later, with blues veteran Steve Wolf Crescenze on bass guitar, this band has found its stride with a new album and a steady following in the DC blues market. The band's latest release, aptly entitled I Think I Made It, shows that Acme Blues Company's songs are as diverse as its members. From the wrenching emotion of No Shortage of the Blues to the hard-driving A Little Somethin' Somethin' to the self-deprecating humor of failed pick-up lines in Hey Baby, this collection throws some interesting spins into the traditional blues sound. Milor's soulful vocals and Remy's articulate, masterful guitar work bring the blues to life by combining a modern feel with a traditional blues foundation. With the release of their full-length studio compilation, fans around the world are discovering what blues legend Pinetop Perkins said after a recent jam with Acme Blues Company: Them boys can play! The 12-track CD includes a guest appearance from DC-based keyboard hero Daryl Davis (Muddy Waters Legendary Blues Band; Chuck Berry; Cephas Wiggins) as well as guitarists Mike Westcott and Robert Hahn.
