Creepy psychedelic horror movie music. Pump organs, violins, accordions and synthesizers will grab you by the gonads and shake you until you're done. 30 MP3 Songs ROCK: Acoustic, CLASSICAL: Contemporary Details: The Midnight of My Life is a horror film written, produced, directed, photographed, and edited by Bob Moricz. Las Pesadillas provide a stunning soundscape that covers a vast array of musical styles and influences including surf, jazz, gypsy, baroque, rock, classical, tribal rhythms, moaning monks, and eerie ambient noise. The music fits the film like a hand in a snug black leather glove itching to wrap itself around a nubile young neck for a nice squeeze. The intensely hallucinagenic images from the film need not be seen to appreciate the aural onslaught mustered from a black pit of evil by Las Pesadillas. Close your eyes and the inner recesses of your subconscious will manifest images of monsters, mad scientists, witches, pig men, slashers, zombies, aliens, and antichrists to haunt dreary days and horrific nights. Las Pesadillas means The Nightmares in Spanish. They live up to their name. -- Bob Moricz
