Details: Washington DC areas Ruthie and the Wranglers have done it again. Their latest release, AMERICANA EXPRESS, packs 12 tracks with creativity, talent, and fun. The CD opens with the revved-up tune, "In the Tank," featuring a welcome collaboration of all three accomplished lyricists (Logsdon, Hardin and Starks). The band has grown to a 5-piece bringing in piano and three-part harmonies. The groups diverse instrumentation and some special guests help satiate the bands desire to travel in some new directions. Accordion adds Tex-Mex flavor to "Life and Death and Hope and Dreams," a tune penned by Greg Hardin. "SurfTango" shows guitarist Phil Mathieus knack for thinking-outside-the-box and is a perfect follow up to the last CDs popular instrumental Surftilicus. On track eight, pianist Bill Starks adds his timely sing-along-anthem about staying "one step ahead of the Repo Man" and "The Last Word in Love" cries out to Bluegrass lovers with its lonesome duo harmonies and Bluegrass musicians Akira Otsuka, Ronnie Simpkins and Ira Gitlin help set the tone. Ruthies voice (along with her songwriting) has gracefully matured since their last release SOMEDAY (praised by The Washington Post as songs vibrant or clever enough to make most of what passes for country music these days sound dead on arrival.) Its on track four, "If I Could Turn Back Time" Logsdons powerful tribute to past mistakes where we hear a new sound infusing the band. The intimate and striking "Not to Love You" also resonates in the new direction. The Rock and Roll swing style of "Ka-Ching," the humor in "Im So Sad Since You Left Me" and the lament "All the Honky Tonks are Closin Down," keep the album sparkling with diversity. It was her Rock n Roll and Punk Rock influences that prompted Logsdons infinite energy and drove her to want to perform, but it was her musical collaborators and her family that supplied her with the real foundation for a music career. AMERICANA EXPRESS contains two special tributes with Loretta Lynns "You Wanna Give Me a Lift" and Jimmie Logsdons "I Got a Rocket in My Pocket." Loretta Lynn has been my biggest influence and my third cousin Jimmie Logsdons Rockabilly hit has always been a great rockin crowd pleaser, so I felt compelled to include their songs. Ironically, my mother shares a birthday with Loretta Lynn and my fathers traveling bible school teacher was Minnie Pearl. I couldnt skirt my Country roots even if I wanted to! And to keep it all in the family, my cousin Ken Perkins, an inspiration to me musically and artistically, contributed the CD cover illustration. --Ruthie After hearing the groups fifth album of collaborations packing depth, wit and unending charm, were left wondering ... what will the next Ruthie and the Wranglers CD sound like?
