Details: Tarah's love of music started very early. When she was a baby her mom would play Elvis records while she toddled around in her living room. As soon as the music started, Tarah would stop whatever baby adventure she was on, crawl to the nearest coffee table, pull herself up, and begin shaking her diaper to the beat! When she was 10 years old, Tarah's vocal coach sent a blind audition tape to the OAKE NATIONAL HONORS CHOIR in Baltimore, Maryland. Tarah was selected, and was the only child from her home town in Texas to perform. She was one of 143 children selected nation-wide. Since then, Tarah has been a member of several school and church choirs. In college, Tarah majored in vocal music education. She was then introduced to Opera, and started developing her classical singing skills. She has been classified as a lyrical first soprano with a coloratura voice. Tarah performed throughout South Texas for audiences of a few hundred to a few thousand. She has been known to sing in ten different languages: English, Spanish, French, German, Italian, Latin, Filipino, Japanese, Hawaiian, and Tahitian. Tarah and her family have recently moved from Texas to Los Angeles to pursue her singing career. She has performed in a few night spots around LA. Hopeless Romantic showcases Tarah's easy romantic style with light jazz standards. She is accompanied in 4 of her songs by accomplished guitarist, Jesse Goodwin, a good friend and excellent artist. Tarah's elegant and heavenly vocal qualities have been compared to the Celtic Women. Her inspirations include Frank Sinatra, Judy Garland, Dean Martin, Nat King Cole, Peggy Lee, and Linda Ronstadt.
