Rens Newland - guitar artist Born 1953 in Holland, Rens Newland started his musical career playing in several cross-over bands. Especially "Scope" was pioneering and successful (Billboard jazz charts). The band also toured in Germany. In 1977 he moved to Vienna, to play with the Austrian Radio (ORF) Big Band and the Erich Kleinschuster Sextet, performing with European and American stars (concerts and broadcasting shows in Austria, Germany, Hungary, Switzerland...). At this time he was also doing his first solo projects, like "Electrio" and "Newland." After the dissolution of the ORF Big Band (1981), he joined "Ostinato," where he was able to unfold his talents in funky and jazz playing, as well as in writing for the horn section (he co-lead with Thomas Brcz). A series of albums came out and also the cooperation with Gina Charito started. The band did a lot of club and festival touring in Austria, Germany and Switzerland. In the years up to 1991 he still did a lot of featured playing, writing and producing for Austrian Radio, a.o. with the ORF Symphony Orchestra and the Moonlight Orchestra, In 1991 he co-produced the Vienna Big Band Machine album and together with Martin Fuss and Hans Salomon he founded the record label JIVE MUSIC. In 1993, he and Bumi Fian started the "Enfant Terrible" project with Thomas Lang, Willi Langer and Woody Schabata. They played at several festivals and in 1995 the first CD came out.
