Purely honest, musically innovative, emotionally intense rock. 9 MP3 Songs ROCK: Modern Rock, POP: British Pop Details: Dirtywhite Fashion, the New York City based rock band, gives its listeners existential insights with a positive edge and creates a fusion of art rock with contemporary overtones. Above all, Dirtywhite Fashion seeks to move its listeners with its raw lyrical content and musically innovative style. Originally formed in NYC, Dirtywhite Fashion is composed of lead singer and songwriter Feck, longtime bandmate and keyboardist Will Sprawls, bassist Chris Miles, and drummer Roman Storch. Their sophomore recording, Reality Music, the follow up to their critically acclaimed debut Thirteen, proves the band more confident and defined than ever, showcasing its unique musical sound. Laying a musical foundation comprised of innovative guitar lines, a Zeppelin-esque rhythm section, and analog-meets-digital synths, Feck's soulful, yet grippingly distinct vocals maneuver through a variety of life experiences and observations. Feck's writing philosophy can be described as concise and deliberate. "I write a song in one pass, one sit-down session, or it doesn't get finished," he says. "Songwriting is reactionary, in my opinion, and is the most true when it is reactionary. I very rarely revise any of my lyrics." Dirtywhite Fashion's first album Thirteen was named one of the best debut CDs of the year by Michael Walls of 2wallsand Alicia Koledin of altarnative.com. Their first single "Someday" climbed to #3 on garagebandand was featured on Shut Eye Records "Buzzlighter" compilation, making the playlist on over 30 college radio stations nationwide. In addition, the single "Superstar" from Reality Music was featured alongside artists like Johnny Cash, Chris Robinson and Ours on CMJ's marathon edition compilation, "Certain Damage." Dirtywhite Fashion has played live across the East Coast and has interviewed on numerous radio stations, including WRAS-GSU (the largest broadcast US college station). Whether in studio or on stage Dirtywhite Fashion strives to create music that not only entertains but moves and inspires the listener. Live, the band is a gritty version of the album and can be described as "really tight but not to the point of sounding uninspired." Keyboardist Will Sprawls explains, "We let loose and keep it real. Feck digs into the strings, Chris holds down the bottom, Roman beats the drums and I interject my soul as much as I can." Inspired by an eclectic array of musicians including Led Zeppelin, Radiohead, The Posies, Oasis, and Ryan Adams, Dirtywhite Fashion's realistic approach, combined with its compellingly addictive tunes and commercially viable sound, will appeal to music lovers everywhere.
