Power vocal pop rock. 10 MP3 Songs POP: Today's Top 40, ROCK: Americana Details: After working with producers and musicians from New York to New Zealand, Laura MacLean, a long-time indie singer-songwriter, has released her debut CD. If The Shoe Fits Wear It Out is exactly what she did during the process of this album. With a strong female demographic, MacLean's songs speak to women, around the world, ages 14 to fifty-something. It is not uncommon that a fan comes backstage to say that her songs could be right from their own diary. "I've lived a little- I've travelled the world and met a lot of people", MacLean states. "My life experiences and the lessons I've learned from them are all what I write about. I guess it speaks to a lot of people and I'm glad my listeners relate to my songs. Life is not all warm and rosy. It's about choices, learning, love and pain- and all these things a result of one-another, funny enough." MacLean hopes that her music can be a positive influence to her listeners. The song 'Does She Know', co-written with Steve Addabbo, speaks of an independent young girl who follows her instincts. 'Prescription For Pain' is about addiction, and 'When To Let It Go' is about moving on from Toxic relationships. "If my song can help someone get through a difficult time, or give them the courage to make better choices for their own happiness, then I am truly rewarded", says MacLean.
