Classic rock influences such as The Who and The Cars come through loud and clear on these well crafted tunes. 15 MP3 Songs POP: British Pop, POP: Beatles-pop Details: "This disc is really, really good. Last one was fine, but this one grabs you from the start and doesn't let up." - DX Farris, Scene magazine Less than a year since the October 2005 release of its acclaimed Refractory CD, Saul Glennon debuts its first of the three-disc Trilogy project with the release of its seventh album, Trilogy 1: How can you call that music? With songs written by frontman Jack Rugan when he was 17 and 18, this 14-cut album features songs recorded from July 2nd to September 24th, 2006 including the long-time live favorite Here we go again, the acoustic subtitle cut, plus rockers Feel the way I felt and Dream girl, night girl. Trilogy 2 and 3 are scheduled for release during the next 12 months and will takes listeners back to songs written from 1982-89 and 1995-97. Saul Glennon welcomes back long-time member Jerry Rugan, who returned in August to record with the band adding newfound drive, energy, and insight following his 5-month hiatus to study the mysteries of the East.
