I can really relate to what Roots Manuva said regarding his fascination with and love of soundsystem culture : Its the bass thing. Its the whole organic thing. Back in those days the sound was probably built by a local carpenter. The whole communal aspect of a bunch of people getting together and doing whatever they have to do to build this sonic monstrosity. Its just the love that people get together and project into this one physical thing. oh and...here is our Beats Without Borders promo video of our best moments the past 3 years of throwing monthly global fusion dance parties wrapped up in a nice little 2 minute package:
