(Neil Campbell and Stuart Todd) are a Liverpool based singer songwriter duo. They have been working together contributing to the performance of each other's songs for over five years. Neil and Stu are both songwriters who each write independently. What they bring to their collaboration is a very distinctive vocal harmony blend and an acoustic meets classical mesh of guitar work which can veer off at times into exciting free form improvisational explosions. Neil Campbell is a classical guitarist, multi-instrumentalist and composer whose work ranges from impressionistic solo guitar pieces to progressive rock and contemporary classical music. Aside from the Campbell Todd CD he has produced six other albums over the last five years filled with solo guitar music ('Through the Looking Glass'(2003) and 'Night Sketches'(2004)), Minimalist/systems music ('Rotations'(2002) and 'Assembly'(2005)), music for guitar and cello with Nicole Collarbone ('Fall'(2006)) and an album with his band The Neil Campbell Collective ( '3 O'Clock Sky'(2005)) Stuart Todd is an acoustic singer songwriter performing on the Liverpool music scene. His work embraces influences such as Bob Dylan, Neil Young, John Lennon and Bruce Springsteen. In 2004 Stuart recorded the five track EP 'Playing The Field' with producer Andy Fernihough. The following year he worked with Neil Campbell on a series of gigs and radio appearances and featured on the Neil Campbell Collective album '3 O'Clock Sky'. Stuart also recorded 'Free Agent' with a band, featuring guitarist Wayne Dineley and drummer Mark Brocklesby. He compiled a second EP 'Man On A Mission' around the same time.
