Related styles: LATIN: Brazilian Jazz, WORLD: Samba People who are interested in Antnio Carlos Jobim Milton Nascimento Toninho Horta should consider this download. Details: Under the influence of clube da esquina and bossa nova, Joo began playing the acoustic guitar at the age of twelve and electric guitar at fifteen, playing all kinds of music, from rock to samba. Ferraz lived for four years in USA studying music at Berklee College of Music and in 2005 he was invited by a friend to live in Rio de Janeiro to produce music. Joo and his partner created the production house Lontra Music, where he works as guitar player, producer and arranger. His first album, SAPO was born while Joo was living overseas, but its debut only occurred at the begin of 2007 in Brazil. Right at its release, the album received top stars at Globo, the biggest brazilian newspaper, Joao and his group were at the cover of Estado de Minas newspaper , the biggest of Minas Gerais, being considered the new generation of musicians from Minas like Milton Nascimento and Toninho Horta. The album was also claimed by the Canadians at the jazzworldquest.com. an exuberant and elegant fusion of brazilian rhythms with modern jazz sounds. Joo Ferraz harmonies are reminiscent of Toninho Hortas sonorities and the album is recommended for those who want to hear whats new and creative in the actual Brazilian music. For 2007, besides touring through Brazil, Joo is preparing his second album (to be released in 2008), alongside with his partners, Rike Frainer on drums, Marcelo Penner on bass, Marco Tomaso on electric piano, Yuri Villar at the soprano sax, Fael Mondego on percussion and vocals and Marcela Velon on vocals. The album will also feature some fine guests from Brasil like Gabriel Grossi at the Harmonica, Vittor Santos on trombone, Sidinho Moreira on percussion, Joana Queiroz on clarinet, among others.
