A musical salad of original Blues, Folk, Country and a couple of inspirational tunes for good measure. This is my first public album. The musical stories range from bar fights to swamp tales. Acoustic folk to electric blues and country. 10 MP3 Songs FOLK: Modern Folk, BLUES: Guitar Blues Details: Everybody has at least one song in them. I guess I'm no exception. I have always been moved by songs that tell a good story. I guess that's why I never decided to write seriously until a few years ago. After years on the road singing in bars and honky-tonks across the south, and a good bit of time doing the coffee house-folk thing, then more years as a boat captain working the oilfields in Africa, Peru, Mexico and a bunch of other places, it occurred to me that I have a few stories to share musically. The songs on Fool Me Once, my first album, are stories I've accumulated over time and about the kind of folks that I thought were worth a good yarn. Some of the characters like Big Dumb Sam and Sweet Jake are fictional embellishments of real people. Talkin Cell Phone Blues comes pretty close to a true life experience and Lost Bayou is a pure folk tale (that I conjured up on a steamy Louisiana Saturday afternoon). The two inspirational songs I included in this CD are special to me so I thought I'd include them. Fool Me Once, the title song, is about an older guy who decides not to be played by a young chippie who thought she had him all wrapped up. You Just Don't Have a Clue tells a story of a young boy who sets out to make a name for himself with his guitar and a book of his own songs. If you're a kid and ready to hit the road and tear up the world, I hope you listen to this story first. Maybe what you hear will help you avoid getting blindsided by life. Like a lot of Indie artists, I play all the instruments and do all the vocals on the album. The genre is mixed; Blues, Country, Folk and Inspirational. Well, being new at this game, I don't have any cool articles or reviews about me to impress you with, (maybe that will change someday) so I'll just tell you: I put my heart into each of my songs. My picking comes from a place in my soul. My hope is to share it with as many people as I can. Hope you enjoy, Mike
