My experience in the dog world has been significant and a huge learning experience about the heart of a dog and the goodness of people. Because of rescue groups that have sprung up in so many countries now, the dogs that have suffered at man's hands have devoted volunteers eager to save their lives and give them a voice and a new chance. I hope that everyone can support these groups, these perfect creatures and always remember that every life makes a difference. Please help by neutering and spaying your pet, support your local shelters and bring home a lost soul to fill your home."
