"The sweet, melodic sounds of Fishing For Comets could be therapy for the sad, or medicine for the downhearted. If the good vibes emitting from this acoustic-rock group could be bottled, it would surely be the cure for something." Wayne Ansell (Harder B 8 MP3 Songs ROCK: Acoustic, ROCK: Folk Rock Details: The Dallas based acoustic-rock group, Fishing for Comets is frequently compared to The Sundays, Rilo Kiley, The Decemberists, and Lisa Loeb. The members of this quintet have formed an inimitable style and created a niche that has filled a void in the Dallas music scene. Camille Cortinas' characteristic voice and captivating stage presence combined with Sam Romero's guitar work form the basis of Fishing For Comets. Eric Swanson and Gary Rivers trade off bass duties and play a mix of additional instruments while Aaron Thomas creates a rhythmic foundation of drums and percussion. Harder Beat columnist Wayne Ansell said it best, "The sweet, melodic sounds of Fishing For Comets could be therapy for the sad, or medicine for the downhearted. If the good vibes emitting from this acoustic-rock group could be bottled, it would surely be the cure for something." Fishing For Comets also recently picked up the Dallas Observer Music Award for Best Folk/Acoustic Act of 2005. Fishing For Comets performs energetically and has developed the reputation as a crowd-pleaser. In the words of Cindy Chaffin of Texasgigs.com, "This band is sheer excellence, so book'em, buy their music, go see'em live... You'll thank me in the morning."
