Details: Slim Beezy, of the group Trilla Boys, calls himself, Chucktowns Best Kept Secret, because of how long he has been doing this music thing without any recognition. He was born and raised in North Charleston, SC, where he started the independent label Undagroun Recordinz in 1999. His new album, Trilla Muggin, brings emotion and everyday real life situations, mixed in with a street vibe, to the music business. The person who inspired him musically was 2Pac, because of his revolutionary style and outlook on life in these streets. 2Pac use to actually talk about the things going on in the streets that nobody was talking about, which sets him off in an incomparable style of street rap. All the songs of his new album have a meaning. Just reading the song title alone gives you a little bit of what you can expect. The subjects he hits on comes at different angles giving the listener different ways to relate to the song. Out ..d and Tha Game is the two songs that have the most meaning for him, in the since of music. Out ..d came from people telling him and his group that they couldnt compete in the music world. With that over their heads they felt they were overwhelmed with many people in the industry, so they would break out on their own. Tha Game came from being pushed away, lied too, etc. with different people in the music business. In the song he explains the struggle hes gone through with different people of the industry and how hes going to fit it.
