Signing up Your own name You should use your own name or your nickname if people use it more commonly, to sign up. Its important to ensure that your friends, family and colleagues can find you easily. 2. Your email Facebook sends out a lot of notifications once you start signing up with various groups and fan pages, apps and even comments. But people can also find you by your email, so you should probably use a personal email account. Check it frequently for friend requests and more. It has to be real though, because Facebook uses it and sometimes your mobile number to verify who you are. 3. Read the terms and conditions You should always read the terms and conditions on any site, and Facebook is no exception, though, it should be noted that Facebook frequently updates its TOS causing a lot of outrage in the community. Know where your rights are and read their documentation.
