Details: This new collection of McDougall recordings Cover with the Moon is exactly the same as the last one completely relieving! In a time where mainstream music continues to spread the same stories of generic heart break, self-indulgence, and pseudo emotional reconciliation, artists like McDougall actually compliment the tradition of songwriting with genuine lyrics and clever, well-crafted guitar. As a long time fan of Scott McDougalls giant body of creative ventures, its nice to know that the songs just keep getting better, and recordings more interesting. Plenty of play-time left on this one. -Jon Wade Ellis, Musician, Everywhere USA This is his best album yet. I love all the songs, especially "Answers of Tomorrow" and "Ones and Twos". Both are so well-written and very appropriate for the world as it is today (or any day for that matter!). His songs command attention from beginning to end. The Lord has given him a great talent. -Perlene McDougall, Musician, McDougalls Mom This record is pretty [darn] good, and the songs are great. I like the way McDougall seems to have at least one track on each album where it sounds like there are a few other people in the room during the recording. It makes me feel like Im listening to the record with friends, although Im by myself. So when I get really lonely (which is about 35 of the time) I just keep McDougall blasting in the background and sure enough the pain of abandonment seems to dissipate. Thanks McDougall for giving me all of your friends and family, youre a nice guy! -Jon Patrick Foshee, Musician, Los Angeles
