His passion for music realized at age three upon showcasing a non-typical excellence in classical piano training. At age five he began summer music theory and technical classes at Montana State University where he continued to study throughout the years. Throughout high school Brown directed his focus to the guitar with which he won numerous competitions, academic excellence awards, and received newspaper recognition on several accounts. Taylor Brown moved to Seattle in 2002 after finishing high school with an acceptance to Cornish College of the Arts under several scholastic scholarships (Music Department Scholarship, Countryman Endowed Scholarship, Welland-Jordan Scholarship). Brown graduated may of 2006 with honors with an academic focus in Jazz composition and performance. He is now an up and coming guitar/piano player in the greater Seattle area specializing in virtually any musical genre. His post-graduate focus centering towards composition and production of his own works in a strictly commercial vein. Brown has recently released a fourteen track solo album entitled Bar Stool Ferris Wheels. The self produced, written, arranged, performed, recorded, mixed, and engineered album directly showcases the vast extent of his many talents. After two and a half years in the making, Bar Stool Ferris Wheels is now available world wide. Brown has performed in venues and studios world wide including Benaroya Hall, The Metra Park Arena, and the Gaylord Entertainment Center in Nashville to name a few. As a song writer, his compositions have received radio airplay, spots on nation wide compilation albums (Best Of the Best 2006: College Records, Banana Belt Studio, Bennett NW), video play on indi films and major universities (Duke, UCLA) as well as televised airplay on Fox Sports.
