At the fresh age of 16 months he moved to Africa's western region to live with his family. Years later, the 2nd government takeover within only a decade and the 1st official civil war in Liberia had besieged the country's capital forcing Vice to eventually return to H-Town. Bigg Vice, the grandson of a former Liberian ambassador, says those "War Years" had a profound effect on not only his life, but the lives of all West African people. During the early and mid 90's, Marbue's main influences within the music industry were Rap A Lot Records, Suave House, Bad Boy Entertainment and Death Row Records. He was mainly interested in their success. By the late 90's, his ears were fixated and tuned in to the raw and youth driven underground sound of Houston's best. Scarface and the 5th Ward boys, U.G.K., E.S.G., Fat Pat, DJ Screw and the Screwed Up Click on the "South Side of that H-Town" were holding it down, but more close to home at the time, was the impact of Swishahouse Records. "Back in my highschool days, we all used to crowd around tables and garbage cans or wherever we could spit at and make beats while we freestyle battled." After highschool, Bigg Vice got a full scholarship to play division 1 basketball. He led the Big West conference in scoring two years in a row and also dominated the inside with his rebounding and shot blocking. While doing his thing with ball on the west coast, Vice was crowned the champion of the MTV Campus Invasion freestyle battle in California in 2003 and never looked back. Soon after he was on the road traveling to Vegas, Virginia, DC, Philly, and NYC to let people know about his rap skills. Over the years he's managed to catch the interests of rap's pioneers the Sugar Hill Gang, Big Daddy Kane, Eve, and even Nelly. Because of his loud powerful voice and witty lyricism, they have compared him to some of hip hops finest MCs (KRS One, Biggie, Luda). But don't let his slick rhymes fool you, Mr. Dennis is all about his business. He has been making a name for himself as "one of Texas top lyricists" and on the infamous myspace website he has even been contacted by P. Diddy's Bad Boy Entertainment label due to his buzz. It doesn't stop there, this young dude is so passionate about music that he's traveled to Germany, Turkey, Ukraine, Sweden, Norway, France and Italy to promote his label Lonestar Family Records. The craziest fact about Vice is that he's accomplished all this with absolutely no manager, staff or personal DJ. You see, through his toughest times of being a broke, poor outcast, surviving war, an immigrant, being homeless, hustlin that green, doin whatever to survive, going through life's ups and downs he's perservered. He's determined to turn what he calls an "Independent Grind" to a "Major Movement". For him, somewhere between all he's seen and all he's been thru, somewhere between Liberia Houston... there's Vice City!!!!
