Details: Christopher Belanger and Jake Neher began writing acoustic songs in a broken down apartment in the cold, Michigan winter months of 2007. Along the way they added the help of Ron Mallinger on percussion and took their fourteen songs into the studio in the fall of 2008. They left guitar sound studio with their debut, self-titled album, an album that is not only representative of what they've written over the last year, but a true documentation of their lives and their friendships. After recording the album they added their friend Andrew Neal to fill in the sound live and help them move forward with a more eclectic sound in their future writing endeavors. The band is excited to get these songs out to the public, it is something they have worked very hard on and are extremely proud of. They have big plans for 2009, including a small east coast tour and writing another album.
