Country music became very much a part of her life as she grew up in small country towns. She gives Martina McBride and Faith Hill much credit for her inspiration. She started singing country music for a talent contest at her hometown fair in Isle of Wight, taking first place four times. While she continues to sing regularly at the fair, she does not participate in the contests. As Heather became older, she sang at late night karaoke around town and at the Hampton Bay Days Karaoke Contest where she took first place. Heather is the proud mother of three, but continues to pursue her singing career. She sings at pageants, weddings, fundraisers and local karaoke. Her latest engagement was for the Annual Pepsi Independence Day Celebration and Fireworks Event in Johnson City, Tennessee where 50,000 people attended. She currently is a participant of the Colgate Country Showdown and won first place at the local level and will be competing at the state level at the Virginia State Fair in September 2004. Heather has recorded an album of her favorite cover songs, including a couple of originals. She plans to record an original album and pursue her life long dream and passion as a country singer.
