His beats are mesmerizing, diggable and danceable. The entire album flows in a way that makes it easy to get lost in the thumping, pulsating sound. The appropriately titled opening track "Enlightenment" is like an awakening of the mind to something profound. "Bach 2001" is a sample of the spacey work the track's namesake would probably be creating if he weren't six feet down and pushing up daisies. The rapid beats are bounce inducing. "Mirage" is exotic, a little erotic and utterly hypnotic. The beat is a dark, haunting and enticing like siren's song. Most of the tracks (see "Cosmic Glitch", "SOL") have a creepy futuristic sound. It surrounds you and is a little cold, but far from sterile. One doesn't need to know how to dance with glow sticks to appreciate Stark's work. It's pure and otherworldly. Strobe light not included. - Justin Kendall, Cityview
