Heart-felt, orchestral, inspirational, and triumphant music collection with lovely baritone solos giving a respectful treatment of Christian classics as well as known gospel music pieces. Full of passion. A must-have. 12 MP3 Songs GOSPEL: Contemporary Gospel, CLASSICAL: Orchestral Details: This new album was recorded in Nashville, TN utilising the engineering and vocal production talents of Barry Weeks (The Imperials, The Martins, New Spirit)(Provident Music) Martin Adu is a music minister, an inspirational gospel music artist based in Leiden, the Netherlands at the Levensstroom Gemeente (Livingstream church). He started singing at the age of 9 and has in the last 20 years a varied experience in leading choirs, conducting gospel music workshops and as guest soloist in different churches, conferences and concerts in the Netherlands, England, France, Nigeria, Ireland, Canada and the USA. The various musical influences he has had plus his warm baritone with heartfelt singing have touched hearts and make him a joy to listen to, and much in demand. Other Albums Let There Be Praise, I have his Promise Press reviews Although many of us, myself included, have been guilty of treating religiously motivated music largely with indifference, it is admittedly refreshing to hear an album that is absolutely oozing with positivity. London-born and Holland-based music minister Martin Adu joyfully sings his way through twelve rapturous celebrations of Jesus and God, backed by the talents of the Praise Celebration Orchestra. ....It is strongest on the more soulful and euphoric numbers, the best example being 'So good', a lively and uplifting celebration which is possibly best imagined as an audio tete-a-tete between Stevie Wonder and God! .....Mark Lee, Music Shopper forum "Easy Listening Gospel with a huge string section and majestic choir/army of singers. These songs sound more like Lawrence Welk , but Adu delivers them with a moving devotion and a rich, powerful voice. --Lycos Music: Martin Adu - Biography
